

ABSTRACT

The present invention discloses a method for processing a deformable element of a microstructure for reducing the plastic deformation by oxidizing the deformable element. The method of the present invention can be performed at a variety of stages of the fabrication and packaging processes.